Island Peak Climbing with Everest Base Camp is an adventurous climbing as well as trekking journey in the Khumbu region. Island Peak Climbing and Everest Base Camp Trek are two very popular ventures of the region. And, combining both in one package is doubling the level of thrill and adventure. If you are someone with past trekking experience, and now looking to step into the climbing world of the Himalayas, then Island Peak climbing with EBC is a great option.

Island Peak is also known as Imja Tse. It is a very attractive and main climbing peak in the Khumbu region. The route to reach the top of Island Peak does not involve technical climbing, which is perfect for beginner climbers. Likewise, you will also reach Everest Base Camp, the base of the world's highest mountain, Mt. Everest (8,848 m). Exploring Everest Base Camp is a dream for hundreds of travelers out there. From the base camp, you get to witness panoramic views of several Himalayan mountains.

The adventure does not end here. You will be crossing Kongma La Pass (5,535 m), a very famous high pass of the Everest region. The trail includes passing through many beautiful villages and dense forests. On the way, you come across many stupas, chortens, prayer wheels, and monastery. You will visit the oldest monastery in the region, the Tengboche monastery as well. At the beginning and end of the trek, you pass by Sagarmatha National Park that is home to hundreds of flora and fauna. Crossing an uncountable number of streams and rivers over suspension bridges and old wooden bridges, you traverse the region.
